

FROM WASHINGTON.

(Special Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 12, 1890.

In the Senate today Mr. Barbour, from the District of Columbia committee, reported back the Georgetown and Arlington Railroad bill, the Falls Church road, with the request that it be referred to the military committee, which request was complied with. The same committee amended the Act to create a commission to investigate the present tracks and depot of the B. & P. Railroad in this city, by accomplishing the object referred to without the need of a commission; which was also referred.

The President informed a delegation of the Chicago World's Fair commission to-day that as soon as the necessary formalities shall have been observed he will issue a proclamation inviting foreign governments to participate in the fair.

Ex-Ambassador General Ayres of Virginia was at the Capitol to-day. He says the case before the U. S. Supreme Court to establish the boundary line between Virginia and Tennessee will not be argued until the term of the court to commence next October.

The Secretary of War sent to Congress to-day a communication to the effect that neither the Nottoway nor the western branch of the Elizabeth River, Va., is worthy of improvement.

By the fortifications bill which passed the House yesterday $48,000 goes to Fort Monroe, in Virginia.

The House census committee to-day agreed to report favorably the bill increasing the number of members of the House to 356. Mr. Holman wanted the number fixed at 332, a decidedly better number, though that is entirely too large. Mr. Tillman, a member of the committee, is in favor of a membership of five or six hundred and a Senate of six members from each State.

In the Senate to-day Mr. Delph argued in favor of reducing the Congressional representation in certain States, especially Mississippi and South Carolina, for imposing qualifications upon the privilege of suffrage.

All the democratic members of Congress are in favor of the usual Christmas recess, and though President Harrison is opposed to it, the impression is that they will have enough republican support to carry through a resolution to that effect.

Today's session of the House was devoted to the consideration of private claims, the only one on the calendar from the 8th congressional district of Virginia, that may possibly be reached being that of Mr. Bushby, for provisions supplied federal soldiers confined in the jail at Alexandria during the war when he was jailed there.

The impression seems to be strengthening that the Force bill will not go through the Senate. A resolution to meet at ten o'clock and discuss as desired was adopted to-day without opposition by the democrats, but they will probably demand the presence of a quorum during the session. It is reported that unless at the republican caucus to be held next Monday, the silver men have their demands granted, they will break away and vote with the democrats to put the bill out of the way. The democratic senators are more hopeful to-day than they have been at any time since the bill was introduced.

A telegram was received this morning from Gen. Brooke, saying that a few of the Indians in the Bad Lands had broken away and were moving North across the Cheyenne river, but the troops are on their trail, and hope soon to intercept them.

The House pension committee agreed to-day to report a bill limiting to $2 the fee for obtaining an increase of pensions.

In the House yesterday evening Mr. O'Ferrall introduced bills for the relief of Isaac Fisher of Shenandoah county, and of Captain John of Frederick county, Virginia.

Congressman McCann says the work of repairing the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal will be commenced right away, but only from Cumberland to Williamsport.

Among the President's callers this morning was a committee of citizens from Florida, headed by the Hon. J. B. Mitchell, collector of customs at Pensacola, who said that they were at Washington to assist in securing the passage of the election bill.

A committee of the National Letter Carriers' Association were before the House postoffice committee to-day and argued for increasing the pay of mail carriers to $1200.

The Secretary of the Treasury has appointed as storekeepers and gaugers Wm. Cassidy, at Alexandria, and Chas. S. Lacey, at Annapolis.

The House military committee have agreed to a bill to revive the grade of Lieutenant General, and to increase to 75 the number of officers for service in educational institutions.

Senator Hampton Defeated.

On the fourth ballot in the South Carolina Legislature yesterday evening J. L. M. Iby was elected United States Senator to succeed Wade Hampton. The vote stood: Iby, 105; Donaldson, 10; Hampton, 42. John Laurens Manning Iby was born at Laurens, S. C., September 10, 1854. He attended the University of Virginia, and afterwards Princeton. Leaving there he read law for three years but practiced his profession only two years. Since then he has resided on his plantation, and farmed near Laurens. He entered the political arena four years ago. He espoused the cause of the farmers' movement at its inception, and was an ardent admirer of Captain B. R. Tillman.

Although he will be the youngest member of the Senate, Mr. Iby has a history, and a pretty lively one, but he has since reformed and joined the Baptist Church. Back in the twenties he was outwitted by the democratic Governor Simpson, who succeeded Hampton, for killing a man named Kiler in Laurens county. A reward of $1500 was offered for his arrest, but he fled the State and remained away until the affair blew over. Then he returned to Laurens, and with the aid of G. W. Shell, then clerk of court, and now a justice member of Congress from this State, was acquitted. Iby's next exploit was to turn him into a shogin, while he was painting the town of Laurens and defy the authorities to arrest him. He paid a fine for this. Then some man attacked him, and Iby brought one of his negroes from his plantation, gave him a horse whip, and catching the offending citizen unaware, held a pistol to his head and one to the negro's head and compelled the negro to horsewhip the man. The next exploit was to go with his brother into the town after a justice of the peace who had offended him, and between the two of them they slashed the justice to pieces. He was never punished. When elected yesterday Iby was greeted with loud cheers by the reformers, and hisses by the straightwits and crowds in the galleries. The Senatorial campaign was very bitter, and last night many citizens of Columbia were wearing grape ribbon on their coat sleeves.

SPRAY ARLINGTON'S DEATH.—A woman who was known in Washington, D. C., as Spray Arlington, and also as Carrie Tompkins, a variety actress, but whose real name is said to have been Betty Stewart, a former resident of Norfolk, Va., was found dead in her house in Port Angeles, Washington, Wednesday. She was known in that State as the wife of Charles A. Morse, but Mr. Morse, who is in Washington city denies that he was married to her. An Englishman named James Woods, suspected of the murder, has been captured and has confessed his guilt.

AN OWLIN HIS STOVE.—In Luray one morning recently Rev. Aaron Boone met with a queer occupant of one of his stoves about the time he was putting the match to the kindling all ready to start the fire. A large owl had come down the chimney during the night and had taken up his comfortable abode in the stove, and when the match was about being applied the large eyes looked like two mirrors as they reflected their light into Mr. B's face.

Mr. Gladstone declared yesterday that the liberals would not abandon the home rule cause but that Mr. Parnell must retire. The executive committee of the Liberal Unionist Association in London has issued a manifesto, declaring that Parnell and the Parnellites have always been an untoward party, in whose policy no reliance could be placed. The Irish envoys in New York issued an address yesterday appealing to their colleagues to unite and achieve home rule.

Just before the death of an unknown man at Tension, Ont., a few days ago, he made the startling assertion that he was the murderer of John R. Bilderbach, near Fort Branch, twenty years ago, for which Thos. Camp, asserting his innocence, was hanged.

Mr. DeLacey Nicol and Miss Maud Churchill, daughter of Mrs. Birnie, were married at Sing Sing, N. Y., yesterday evening.

Messrs. O'Brien and Gill, the Irish envoys, will sail from New York for Rotterdam to-morrow.

Congress.

As stated in the GAZETTE, there was a lively debate in the U. S. Senate yesterday over the Plumb resolution to lengthen the sessions, and Senator Hoar objected to democratic applause in the galleries. Mr. Hoar asked Mr. Harris whether he was willing now to agree upon a time for closing the debate and voting on the bill. Mr. Harris replied: "Not until every Senator on this side, and on that side, who wishes to speak, has been heard to the fullest extent of his desire."

Speeches on the election bill were made by Messrs. Wilson, of Iowa, and Frye, of Maine. Mr. Frye said that in his speech of a few days ago the Senator from Virginia (Mr. Daniel) had made a reference to the Lynde report. The reference to it seemed to point to the conclusion that he (Mr. Frye) joined in the report. This was not an isolated case. As many as six different times what was known as the Lynde report had been cited, and he had been charged—and he regarded it as a serious charge—with joining in that report. He desired to say that there had never been any Lynde report; that no report whatever had been made by the committee appointed to investigate Mr. Davenport in the Forty-fifth Congress. Mr. Frye then proceeded to review and to criticize Mr. Davenport's method of supervising elections in New York and said: "I do not regard the average democrat, in politics, as above reproach. The moment a man becomes a democrat he becomes at once capable of attempting almost any fraud in the matter of voting."

Mr. Daniel commented upon Mr. Frye's declaration as to associating a bayonet with every ballot, and that suffrages should be deposited at the muzzle of guns. That, he said, was the Senator's (Mr. Frye's) conception of a republic—a bayonet and a ballot side by side. But that was not the conception of a republic which its founders had, and was not the conception of a republic which the American people had to-day.

Mr. Frye—"I said 'if it was necessary to secure a free ballot.'"

Mr. Daniel—"There is much virtue in an 'if.' This bill has not a bayonet with every voter, if the supervisor of election chooses to put it there."

Mr. Daniel admitted that elections in New York city have been purified, but claimed that the result was due, not to Mr. Davenport, but to the good citizenship of both political parties. The distinct charge which he made against that gentleman was that he had precluded and debased the machinery of justice, and had shown himself to be a conscienceless tyrant and a demagogue. He read an article from the New York Sun of December 10, headed "Davenport Catches It," and stating that the United States grand jury had administered a stinging rebuke to John I. Davenport and his man Daul.

NOT ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT ARLINGTON.

—Some surprise being expressed at the capital that the Virginia members did not support the resolution looking to the removal of the remains of General Grant to Arlington, the inquisitive individuals were told by a number of people that the Virginians are not very enthusiastic about Arlington for the reason that they recalled how that fine property owned by the Lee was ruthlessly confiscated, and the family were not paid anything like half the value of the estate. Besides, a large portion of the money paid had to go to defray expenses of the suit.—Richmond Dispatch

ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES.

Proceedings of Congress.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 12.

SENATE.

Mr. Hoar, on behalf of the Wage Workers' Political Alliance of Washington, D. C., introduced a bill to establish a department of elections.

Mr. McPherson presented numerous remonstrances from the State of New Jersey against the passage of the elections bill.

Mr. Plumb's resolution for daily meetings at 10 and for evening sessions was taken up.

Mr. Hoar moved to amend the resolution by striking out the clause for evening sessions and making it take effect after to-morrow, so as to leave the resolution provide only for the earlier daily meeting.

The amendment was agreed to, and then the resolution was agreed to without debate.

The resolution offered yesterday by Mr. Delph instructing the committee on privileges and elections to inquire and report whether the right to vote at any election for presidential electors, members of Congress, or State legislators or officers is denied to any male citizens of any State, or is abridged, except for participation in the rebellion or other crime, was taken up; and Mr. Delph stated the reasons which had induced him to offer it.

Mr. Vest introduced an amendment instructing the committee to inquire further whether by any State legislation, any citizens of the United States were denied the right to work on any public improvements by reason of their color. There was, he said, a right antecedent to, and superior to, the right of suffrage. That was the privilege of every human being to obey the divine injunction: "In the sweat of thy face thou shalt eat bread." It was the right of self-preservation, of self-protection.

While the Senator from Oregon expanded his logic and eloquence on the wrongs of the colored people of the South, he (Mr. Vest) simply desired (with equal-handed justice) to exempt him from the legislation of the republican Legislature of Oregon, which deprived the negro citizens of that State of the right to labor on works of public improvement.

Mr. Vest read a clause from a recent statute of the Oregon Legislature authorizing the building of a bridge and providing that none but white labor should be employed on the work.

Mr. Delph said that he was informed by a Senator on his side of the chamber that Senator Butler had threatened colored men in his employment that he would discharge them if they should vote the republican ticket.

Mr. Butler—Whatever made that statement is guilty of a deliberate and wilful falsehood—a deliberate and wilful falsehood.

Mr. Hoar—I made the statement myself to the Senator from Oregon. (Laughter on the democratic side.)

Mr. Butler—Then the remark that I made applies, of course, to the Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. Hoar—I am not to be deterred from saying what I have to say.

Mr. Butler—I don't propose to deter the Senator.

Mr. Hoar—(proceeding to the sentence) either by the manner or behavior of the Senator from South Carolina.

The discussion on Mr. Delph's resolution continued all day, when the resolution went over without action. The elections bill was then taken up, and Mr. Blodgett addressed the Senate in opposition to it.

HOUSE.

After the reading of the journal the House went into Committee of the Whole on the private calendar.

A wagon loaded with copies of the edition was driven to the railway station to-day for distribution in the south of Ireland. Execution of Blanchard.

SHEBROOK, Can., Dec. 12.—Wm. W. Blanchard was executed this morning for the murder of Chas. Calkins in November, 1889, at Ayres Falls. There was no premeditation of the deed. It was merely the outcome of a drunken brawl. Blanchard, who was an American tramp, became acquainted with Calkins, and the two were together continually. One evening they were having a carouse when Blanchard produced a revolver and boasted of his proficiency with the weapon. Calkins remonstrated and a scuffle ensued in which the weapon was discharged and Calkins was instantly killed.

A Conscientious Judge.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Dec. 12.—In the Circuit Court here yesterday, the case of Chas. Seward, convicted of murder in the first degree, was before Judge E. Holt, who overruled the motion for a new trial, and sentenced the prisoner to be hanged on Thursday, January 29. The Judge then stated that he never would sentence a man to be executed on a Friday, because on that day Jesus' Christ was crucified, and he would not insult the memory of the founder of Christianity by sentencing a murderer to be hanged on the day upon which the Son of God sacrificed his life for humanity's sake.
